

Two Dollar Bills, Blood and Duct Tape.

"I started making wallets out of colored Duct Tape back in 1998. This all took place on my kitchen counter top, in my apartment, during my first summer away at College. This was nearly 10 years ago..."

Money was tight. To make ends meet and earn a living at the time, I would pedal my bike down to the local "PLASMA DONATION CENTER" and I would let some young eastern Idaho medical technicians extract my blood (my Plasma)- I got paid $35 to donate twice a week. Oddly enough, they paid me in $2 bills for my blood. It was the weirdest thing and I never figured out the answer as to why. These no-longer-in-print-bills they paid me with were the crispest currency I have ever seen; almost as if they were brand new. Almost as if they were worth more than $2.

For the sake of nostalgia, I kept about 6 of these odd bills; to this day, I still have them stashed in my dresser drawer. I also kept a couple of scars too. I still have a plasma-needle-caused scar on the inside of my left arm where those big fat needles use to draw my blood. After each donation session, and only after I got paid some cash, I would then take my new blood money over to the local true value hardware store and I would buy as many rolls as I could of 2-inch wide colored duct tape. Then I'd go across the street and buy a few groceries with any remaining money I had, load up my bike and pedal as fast as I could home to make my wallets. I sold them to anyone who wanted one. Soon, I realized that everyone wanted one and so I had to figure out the quickest and most efficient way to make them. Given my years of experience, I can now make a Duct Tape Wallet in less than 5 minutes start to finish.

However, I choose to no longer make Duct Tape Wallets. These days, I only sell the instructions. I made about 30,000 of these wallets before I decided to retire from the Duct Tape Wallet Making Game. Over the years I perfected my craft and I recently packaged up and launched all of my Duct Tape Wallet secrets in the form of a do-it-yourself kit in which people can now make their own wallet and scream, "It's mine because I made it!"

The Kit is fun for everyone and our myDuctbills Kit is now sold in retailers across the globe. It only takes about $20 bucks to buy a kit. That's only like ten two dollar bills..."

-Garett Croft Stenson, Creator of the myDuctbills Kit

"myDuctbills" is a product of db clay (www.dbclay.com). We are requesting coverage on this innovative product and the heartwarming success story behind it. Be in touch for more info!

www.myDuctbills.com

MEDIA CONTACT:

Benjamin Diggles
E: benjamin@dbclay.com
P: 971 223 5679